Year 2011 has been declared as the World Veterinary Year to commemorate 250 years of veterinary education. The year also marks completion of 150 years of scientific forest management in Madhya Pradesh and the state has privilege of being one of the leading state in the country contributing towards wildlife and biodiversity conservation. As a part of the celebrations, the Association of Indian Zoo and Wildlife Veterinarians and Madhya Pradesh Pashu Chikitsa Vigyan Vishwavidyalaya (MPPCVV), Jabalpur extends a cordial invitation to you to participate in the National Congress on Wildlife Health and Forensics organized at Jabalpur during September 15-16, 2011. The congress is being organized by the Center for Wildlife Forensic & Health, MPPCVV, Jabalpur and the Association of Indian Zoo & Wildlife Veterinarians.

The scientific sessions in the congress will include topics on various aspects of wildlife conservation and focus on the growing need of scientific, ethical, humane and professional management of wild animals and developing resources in wildlife forensic. The congress would provide opportunity to bring together the wildlife health professionals working in different capacities in free ranging as well as captivity to interact with eminent personalities and share their experiences.

It would also provide opportunity to review and formulate strategies for conservation of threatened species in protected and non protected areas around the country and outline scientific methods for conservation of wild animals in captivity and free range along with emphasis on global warming and pollution.

Your participation and contribution to the success of this memorable event will be very valuable and highly appreciated. On behalf of the Organizing Committee, we extend a warm invitation to participate in the scientific programme and look forward to your participation in the National congress.
